

To provide an information providing system which can easily and quickly provide various information about procurement.

5 The system includes a database storing information about parts and their unit prices, amount of money, products, and environment linked with each other, a database storing information about materials and their unit prices, amount of money, products, and 10 environment, a database storing supplier information and map information linked with each other, a database storing information about transaction record. By inputting a condition, information satisfying the condition can be retrieved from each database and 15 provided.